

Aplicaciones

For paint and product manufacturers, NCS is a vital business development tool, increasing sales while saving costs and making colour communication more effective.

The complete range of the 1950 NCS standard colours.

NCS can help improve profitability at each step of the colour communication process - from colour collection development to production, marketing and sales. At each step, a number of tools and services are available from NCS. By using NCS as the platform for your laboratory, formulation and production the value for you is immense, running through your company and on, into your customers hands.

Your organisation also gains a common language that improves efficiency and communications everywhere. NCS has accuracy that you and your customers can trust, across all of your product range. These are just a few of the reasons that most of the world's leading paint manufacturers use NCS.
